As I compiled this list I was struck by how many families are not only new to the school but also to our temple community - some traveling from as far away as Vancouver just to attend. Thank you so much for placing your faith and trust in us. I, along with the rest of the administrative and educational team, are absolutely committed to providing the best Krishna-centered educational experience possible for our young students.

I am convinced that the long-term growth and development of the New Raman Reti community is dependent on the continued success of our school. As I look beyond this year, we are going to have to start investing resources now to ensure that we can meet the needs of our burgeoning child population. Now is the time to start thinking about how we would like to see the New Raman Reti School develop. Your input is essential, so I am asking for your help. Over the next week or so think about what you would like to see for our children now and in the future and how New Raman Reti School can be a part of that. Please share your thoughts and ideas with me. I can be reached by phone: 386-462-2886 or email: nrrs@windstream.net. I look forward to hearing from you!

New Name: The 3-6 year old class (formerly Bambini Bhavan) now has a new name: Bhakti Bhavan, or place of devotion. We also have brand new 12" Deities of Lord Jagannath, Lord Baladeva and Lady Subhadra which were donated by mother Iccha Sakti. They are situated on Their new altar and are served daily by the students. Thank you, mother Iccha Sakti!

August/September: We focused on several themes including the spiritual festivals of Janmastami, Srila Prabhupada's Appearance and Radhastami. We have been hearing and chanting about these wonderful pastimes and the students never seem to tire of singing the many songs about the Lord and His devotees.

Ramanda Raya receives a lesson

Other areas we have focused on are the Fall season, the parts of a tree, land, air, and water, the world, living and non-living things, vertebrate and invertebrates, as well as magnetic and non-magnetic objects.

In Practical Life we have been learning new work such as mirror polishing while doing some of their old favorites like banana cutting.

October: We will continue with our Fall unit but will focus on the annual celebrations of Kartika such as Diwali, Govardhana Puja and Go-puja. Next week, we will start rehearsing for a play which will be performed by the class on Govardhana Puja. We are looking forward to this and if anyone is interested in helping out in any way, please let the teachers know.

Audarya Bhavan - Grade 1-3

by Satyaki dasi

The 6-9 year old class is called Audarya Bhavan, which means the place of generosity and magnanimity. Lord Chaitanya was the most magnanimous and generous in giving freely the Holy Names of Krishna to all fallen souls in this age of Kali, and we are practicing to follow in His footsteps. The Deities that we worship are Gaura -Nitai and Lord Nrsinghadeva. The children serve the Deities every day by offering arotik and kirtan. On Thursdays, we offer arotik to Tulasi –devi while the children circumambulate and water her.

Our themes for August/September were Janamastami, Radhastami, and the Appearance days of Vamanadev and Srila Bhaktivinoda. We also started a classroom book entitled “Who Am I?” This will be finished in October.

Tulasi puja

Academically, we focused on the five kingdoms of life, external parts of animals, points, lines, and solids, images in stories and poetry, parts of a paragraph, land forms and the history of writing.

Technology in the Classroom: In Madhurya Bhavan we created digital Photostories of the Tenth Chapter of the Gita. Each group was composed of a music master, digital story master, Narrator and picture hunter. In only two weeks time the students created a narrative with digital pictures, music and narration, which they recently shared with their fellow students in the Audarya Bhavan.

We have also created a classroom Google group where students can dialogue about hot topics related to lessons in the class. Last week, Narayani posted the question, "What would you do if you were not invited to a birthday party by a friend." Students debated online what the most appropriate response would be and how they would respond. The Google group is a safe online space for students to converse, upload their work and even download their homework!

Classroom Newsletter: This month we also started our classroom newsletter. Students will take turns being the Editor, Graphic Designer and Journalists. This month Bali and Srivas are the Graphic Designers and Aravind and

by Nataka-Candrika dasi

Pouting, with tears welling up in her eyes, 4 year-old Nadia rushes toward her teacher. With the words tumbling out of her mouth, she points to a classmate, 3 year-old, Hladini. “She took the sand bucket I was playing with!” Hladini, also on the brink of tears, defends her position. “She left it so I took it!” Calmly, in a loving tone, their teacher tells Hladini, “Talk to Nadia, tell her with your words.” Just then, Nadia exclaims, “We need the peace flower!” as she runs to get it. Taking turns holding the flower, each girl explains her side of the story and how she’s feeling. Back and forth the flower is passed until they come to an agreement. Each girl smiles and runs back to play, oblivious of their teacher who observes from a distance.

Nataka-Candrika reads Krishna book

As a newcomer to Bhakti Bhavan and the Montessori method, I never cease to be amazed at the myriad of events such as these that take place on a typical day in our classroom. Admittedly, as a former pre-school teacher, I had my reservations about teaching in a Montessori classroom. After all, I had run my own Krishna Conscious pre-school for many years so why the change? Aren’t most classrooms pretty much alike? But after learning about this system by taking training courses and visiting several Montessori classrooms, I can honestly say that our classroom is unique-unique because it offers the best of both worlds!

Recently, I have been reflecting on how fortunate we are as the parents, students and teachers of Bhakti Bhavan. It is encouraging to see such loving parents, who are the first and foremost teachers in a child's life. Daily, I witness these loving exchanges as the children are dropped off and picked up at the school. Each morning children kiss their parents good-bye and run off to play with friends in an attractive and safe environment. I think about how the parents have given so much time and care to see that their child is sent to school clean, well-fed, and rested. For instance, the contents of the healthy lunches (sent in earth friendly containers) are a testimony to the love of these parents for their children. Indeed, it is refreshing to see!

During the school day, I can't praise the teachers enough for providing a clean, beautiful atmosphere of warmth, love and care. They treat the students as they would their own children. Recognizing each child's unique characteristics and developmental stage, the teachers guide them towards appropriate activities, always encouraging them to "be their best self!" Daily I observe the respectful manner in which all of the children are treated. I am in awe of the teachers' ability to keep so many things running smoothly in a classroom of 23 students! These teachers deserve so much credit for their attention to the details in their environment. From the beautiful place settings (using real silverware, cloth napkins, and glass plates) to the child-sized furniture and materials made of natural products, the teachers have created an aesthetically pleasing learning environment.

Lunch time!

As for our students-we think we are blessed to have the privilege of training these great souls. Krishna has surely sent them to teach us what is most important in life. This is evident as they naturally bow to our classroom Deities each morning and bring their small offerings of wild flowers. Recently, as I offered my obeisances to the Deities, I noticed a small necklace made from pasta around Lady Subhadra's neck. One of the students had offered Her this small token of love. This is real bhakti...offering our service and love to Krishna. As part of their daily circle time, the children sing songs and do finger plays about Krishna. One of their favorite activities is hearing a flannel board story about Krishna's pastimes told by teacher assistant, Radhakunda dasi. As Srila Prabhupada said,

“These children are given to us by Krishna, they are Vaisnavas and we must be very careful to protect them. These are not ordinary children, they are Vaikuntha children, and we are very fortunate we can give them chance to advance further in Krishna consciousness. That is a very great responsibility, do not neglect it or be confused. Your duty is very clear.”
